Iowa: Both have the same problems, BUT that 2003 model is considered the "bridge engine" model. It will have higher exhaust temps, and we have seen eroded turbo "hot" housings and exhaust "center sections", because of those temps, and in addition to that, CAT screwed up and had the fuel settings wrong on those engines and caused even more heat to enter the exhaust.

I used to drive a day cab columbia with a c12 hauling trash out of nyc, the truck would run 24 hrs a day for 5/6 days a week. They took a lot of abuse and kept on running, didnt get good fuel mileage or good maintenance, and used alot of oil, but I think if one was properly taken care of it would a good motor

It is a fine engine. We've had a 430hp C12 for about 4 yrs. Depending on the weight you will be pulling, and how fast you want to run, I HIGHLY recommend a 13spd transmission. Being able to split the top side makes a HUGE difference in pulling ability. Have 3.70 gears with ours, and gets 6.5mpg. This is in a day cab T800.

I had the same problem with 2003 Cat 3196 engines (brother to the C12). Caterpillar replaced many parts to include the ECU and the turbocharger. My engine also ran fine and looked normal with the diagnostic computer hooked up. The problem was finally solved when the "fly by wire" control at the helm station was replaced.

Wow what a lot of problems. Got no solution for you, just knows what works for us. We have a C12 engine 450000 miles on the engine, we use nothing but Cat filters,anti freeze,Cat litter (jk), we don't often lug it up mountains, and it gets totally awesome mileage, no drips, leaks, or other undesirables.

I have one truck with a C12, a 1998 Pete 378 13 spd transmission. Seems to be a good engine. No problems with the motor, some with the Pete truck itself (wiring issues). It doesn't burn any oil, and its been quite a while since a rebuild. The Jakes are the best I have seen in a Cat motor.

Caterpillar claims that the primary failure mode for the C12 from overspeed is valve/piston failure when the Jake is activated. I have heard from several RVers who have destroyed their engines because of "valve problems." Caterpillar claims they have used the stock C12, with a different head, for racing, and turned 3200 rpm.
