I'm not positive, but I believe skg0009 was asking which digital cameras can be focused manually...like the old film cameras of yore, where you focus using a ring on the lens. It seems most of the answers posted here had to do with 'manual control capability' rather than 'manual focusing' capability.

Best Answer: I'd say go for a used Canon T2i off of Craigslist. They can be had for around $400 to $450. They use SD cards not the CF cards that the 7D uses. Another $275 gets you a cheap shoulder rig with mat box and a manual focus dial but you can shoot pretty awesome stuff with just the kit lens on the camera.

My assumption is that by manual focus you mean the ability of the photographer to override the focus settings and change the focus point. As other responses have indicated there are many. There is perhaps a view that because of the way that the photographer operates this feature in compact cameras that it is not 'real' manual focus.

What camera would you recommend for using with Pentax manual focus lenses? Needn't be a pentax camera. I would like focus peaking. Would be good if it was cheapish. Tilting screen would be a bonus, and probably mirrorless. Is the K-01 the best option? I've heard the sony cameras have better focus peaking.
